This course specification provides a summary of the main features of the course, identifies the aims and learning outcomes of the course, the teaching, learning and assessment methods used by teaching staff, and the reference points used to inform the curriculum.

This information is therefore useful to potential students to help them choose the right course of study, to current students on the course and to staff teaching and administering the course.

Further detailed information on the individual modules within the course may be found in the relevant module descriptors and the Course Handbook provided to students on enrolment.

Please refer to the Module Web Search for further information on the course structure and modules.

Educational aims of the course

The Course Specification Guidance Notes include advice on what to include in this section.

The aim of this course is to enable students to undertake an ordered and critical investigation of a strategic Human Resource Management or Development issue, which will demonstrate their ability to work independently at master's level, in both preparing and presenting their dissertation. The dissertation will therefore be indicative of the student's potential and will demonstrate an ability to extend the existing body of HRM or HRD knowledge.

Course Learning Outcomes and Learning, Teaching and Assessment Strategies
