MSc Criminology and Criminal Psychology (Distance Learning)

Programme Specification

Primary Purpose
Course management and quality assurance.

Secondary Purpose
Detailed information for students, staff and employers. Current students should refer to the related Course Handbook for further detail.

Disclaimer
The University of Portsmouth has checked the information given in this Programme Specification. We will endeavour to deliver the course in keeping with this Programme Specification; however, changes may sometimes be required arising from annual monitoring, student feedback, review and update of units and courses. Where this activity leads to significant changes to units and courses, there will be prior consultation of students and others, wherever possible, and the University will take all reasonable steps to minimize disruption to students. It is also possible that the University may not be able to offer a unit or course for reasons outside of its control, for example; the absence of a member of staff or low student registration numbers. Where this is the case, the University will endeavour to inform applicants and students as soon as possible. Where appropriate, the University will facilitate the transfer of affected students to another suitable course.

Curriculum

12. Educational Aims
- To develop students’ understanding of criminological theories of offending and the extent of crime.
- To provide an opportunity for students to develop an understanding of the application of criminological principles to law enforcement and criminal justice agencies.
• To provide opportunities for students to study a range of criminological subjects and to write a substantial piece of academic written work.
• To develop students’ understanding of the psychology of various types of offending behaviour.
• To provide an opportunity for students to discover how psychological research informs practice within a range of criminal justice agencies.
• To provide opportunities for students to study a range of security related subjects and to write a substantial piece of academic work

13. Reference Points
The programme and outcomes have been developed taking account of:
• The University of Portsmouth Curriculum Framework Document
• QAA Code of Practice for the Assurance of Academic Quality and Standards in HE
• Framework for the Higher Education Qualifications
• The scholarship and research expertise of academic members of ICJS staff
• Subject Benchmark Statements for Criminology
• ICJS ‘Core Values’.

14. General Learning Outcomes

Level 7
Master’s degrees are awarded to students who have demonstrated:
• a systematic understanding of knowledge, and a critical awareness of current problems and/or new insights, much of which is at, or informed by, the forefront of their academic discipline, field of study or area of professional practice
• a comprehensive understanding of techniques applicable to their own research or advanced scholarship
• originality in the application of knowledge, together with a practical understanding of how established techniques of research and enquiry are used to create and interpret knowledge in the discipline
• conceptual understanding that enables the student:
  • to evaluate critically current research and advanced scholarship in the discipline
  • to evaluate methodologies and develop critiques of them and, where appropriate, to propose new hypotheses

Typically, holders of the qualification will be able to:
• deal with complex issues both systematically and creatively, make sound judgements in the absence of complete data, and communicate their conclusions clearly to specialist and non-specialist audiences
• demonstrate self-direction and originality in tackling and solving problems, and act autonomously in planning and implementing tasks at a professional or equivalent level
• continue to advance their knowledge and understanding, and to develop new skills to a high level

And holders will have:
• the qualities and transferable skills necessary for employment requiring:
  • the exercise of initiative and personal responsibility
  • decision-making in complex and unpredictable situations
• the independent learning ability required for continuing professional development
15. Learning Outcomes

A. Knowledge and Understanding of:

A.1 Criminological theory

B. Cognitive (Intellectual or Thinking) Skills, able to:

B.1 Design research and undertake data analysis and evaluate quantitative and qualitative research methodologies.
B.2 Review and evaluate evidence using an ethical approach to develop logical arguments.
B.3 Engage critically with competing academic literature and apply them to criminology and criminal psychology.
B.4 Engage with a range of other criminological and criminal psychological issues
B.5 Engage critically with psychological approaches and apply them to the criminal justice context in England and Wales.

C. Practical (Professional or Subject) Skills, able to:

C.1 Apply a range of generic and criminal justice specific concepts to crime and offending behaviour.
C.2 Locate, evaluate, synthesise and summarise evidence from a wide range of relevant national and international criminological and psychological research studies.
C.3 Present an informed opinion of the benefits and strengths of the application of criminal psychological research to criminology.
C.4 Investigate criminological questions in relation to victimisation, crime, responses to crime and deviance, and representations of these.
C.5 Undertake independent research on complex matters relevant to criminology and criminal psychology.
C.6 Demonstrate an ability to research independently, to evaluate different kinds of evidence, and to synthesise and evaluate material from a wide range of different sources in producing a research based dissertation

D. Transferable (Graduate and Employability) Skills, able to:

D.1 Select and effectively use a range of strategies and resources to explore problems, research different options and formulate valid proposals.
D.2 Develop a broad range academic and employability skills particularly in communication, information technology skills and problem solving.
D.3 Communicate through a range of forms of written work and online communication.
D.4 Demonstrate a basic knowledge of ICTs, including word-processing, presentation preparation, use of email, online discussion tools, web searching and evaluation of sources, online bibliographic database searching, etc..
D.5 Manage, plan, implement and write up a dissertation.
D.6 Take charge of one’s own learning (planning and managing own time), reflecting and evaluating personal strengths and weaknesses for future learning (and developing as appropriate).

16. Learning and Teaching Strategies and Methods

A1-A4 are delivered by online interactive learning materials in Moodle, backed by telephone and e-mail support, twice weekly online seminars within the postgraduate virtual learning environment (Moodle), a study support information pack, together with optional attendance at annual Study School.
The open learning materials provided will encourage ongoing analysis and reflection on course content, competing interpretations and experiences and will enable B1-B5 to be achieved. Example activities include email and telephone tutor interaction and online interaction.

Open learning materials encourage students to relate the concepts and theories in question to their workplace and experience. Online seminars will provide opportunities for the exploration of the relationship between course content and practical situations with other students in diverse contexts around the world, as well as on-campus and will enable C1-C6 to be achieved. All students on the course will be encouraged to network with each other via the course-level Moodle site, and unit-level Moodle sites, to develop informal student study-groups. This will provide opportunities for direct exchange of information and experiences from a diverse range of agencies and countries.

Coursework assignments will expect students to locate appropriate materials from a range of sources (directed and undirected), to evaluate their utility, accuracy and currency and to use them to communicate effectively in a wide range of written and discursive formats (D1-D6). All assignments must be word-processed and students are expected to seek academic and technical sources of help and advice from a number of sources at different stages of the programme (D2-D4). All students are required to take personal responsibility for their learning throughout and to plan and deliver assignments within a framework of paced-study and appropriate deadlines (D6).

17. Assessment Strategy

A1-A3 will be assessed through a range of essays, short assignments and case studies. A4 will be assessed by a dissertation.

B1-B5 will be assessed through essays, short assignments, and case-study coursework, which will require deployment of a range of critical analytical skills and bibliographic research and evaluation skills. Dissertation criteria will require demonstration of B1-B5.

C1-C6 will be assessed through the core of coursework assignments, which will require the application of academic research to theoretical, and practical aspects of security and related issues in England and Wales and beyond. C5 and C6 will be assessed through the dissertation.

D1-D6 will be assessed through the coursework requirements for each unit. D5 is assessed through the dissertation. The system of deadlines and associated penalties for late submission ensures student planning of time and academic tasks and encourages personal responsibility for own learning (D6).

18. Course Structure, Progression and Award Requirements

See Unit Web Search\(^1\) for full details on the course structure and units

- 180 credits are required to achieve a Masters degree. Standard University rules apply and the regulations must be consulted for a full description of exit awards.
- The programme operates on a 2 or 3 year part time basis.
- Units are 30 credits (with the exception of the 60 credit dissertation).
- One credit is equivalent to 10 notional learning hours.

19. Employability Statement

Many students/candidates are employed before they are accepted on this course. ICJS has a range of links with local and national employers within the security and criminal justice sector which enhance our teaching, research and knowledge transfer activities. Our curriculum is also informed by the contributions of former practitioners on our academic staff. Personal Development Planning is made available to all students through the personal tutoring.

Students are introduced to career management skills (self-awareness, professional development planning, CV development etc.) in order to get them thinking about their existing skills and career plans at our annual study school. There are plenary sessions for students on the further development of career management skills and this is supported by interactive online exercises and website resources related to the subject area. Students also have access to an interactive, online Employability Hub and the ICJS LinkedIn network.

\(^1\) www.port.ac.uk/unitwebsearch

As part of Induction personal tutorials and PDP, we provide further guidance and activities for students (as part of what are currently termed ‘Pathfinder Exercises’). This is linked to individual research/project skills related to the core 60 credit dissertation/project and group research/project skills in core units.

For all students we also run a series of Faculty-wide careers events with employers from a range of relevant employment sectors during the year and a Faculty Alumni Day. ICJS also runs a Careers Panel, which invites former ICJS students, who have since gained employment in the relevant sectors, to return to the university and share their experiences with current students. These are open to distance learning students.

All these activities will be supported by the Tutoring system and a refocused PDP – developing students as professionals - Professional Development Planning.

We also provide opportunities for students to engage in work-related learning through active learning and the application of skills in work-related environments. This consists of an understanding of working environments and the impact of globalisation on career goals.

Course Management

20. Support for Student Learning

- The Course is managed by a Course Leader whilst the programme area as a whole is overseen by a Programme Area Leader
- Each unit is managed by a unit coordinator responsible for delivery and academic support
- Extensive induction programme introduces the student to the University and their course.
- Each student has a personal tutor, responsible for pastoral support and guidance.
- University support services include careers, financial advice, housing, counselling etc.
- The Academic Skills Unit (ASK).
- The Additional Support and Disability Advice Centre (ASDAC).
- Excellent library facilities.
- The University of Portsmouth has consistently been awarded an excellent rating for student support and guidance in a number of Quality Assurance Agency inspections.
- Student course and unit handbooks provide information about the course structure and University regulations etc.
- Feedback is provided for all assessments.
- Personal Development Planning (PDP) for all awards.

21. Admissions Criteria

A. Academic Admissions Criteria
