This information is therefore useful to potential students to help them choose the right course of study, to current students on the course and to staff teaching and administering the course.

Further detailed information on the individual modules within the course may be found in the relevant module descriptors and the Course Handbook provided to students on enrolment.

Please refer to the Module Web Search for further information on the course structure and modules.

Educational aims of the course

The Course Specification Guidance Notes include advice on what to include in this section.

This Masters course aims:

- To provide opportunities for industry and commerce based professionals, with some experience in Environmental and/or Occupational Health and/or Safety Management, to extend their scholarship, exercise judgement and acquire skills; thereby to develop and demonstrate their further potential to assume policy-making, managerial or consultancy roles.
- To provide corresponding career development opportunities for graduates in related fields who seek expertise and competence in Occupational and Environmental Health and Safety Management.
- To make an important contribution to satisfying urgent needs for improved Occupational and Environmental Health and Safety Management in industry. To meet the increasing demand for professionals equipped to specialise in these challenging areas of management.

The overall philosophy of the Learning at Work department is to encourage and reward career related lifelong learning by:

- enhancing the scholarship of work-based learners, by requiring the development of a range of self-managed, conceptual and analytical skills applicable to practical problems within their professional fields
- assisting in the personal and professional development of students so that they may improve the contribution they can make to the organisations in which they are employed
- furthering the University's plans for expanding work-based learning and widening participation, through the provision of education that is relevant to the economy (local, national and international) and maximise learning partnerships between the University and industry, commerce, the services and voluntary sectors
- encouraging industry and commerce to become partners in developing their employees' technical and business competences
