This course specification provides a summary of the main features of the course, identifies the aims and learning outcomes of the course, the teaching, learning and assessment methods used by teaching staff, and the reference points used to inform the curriculum.

This information is therefore useful to potential students to help them choose the right course of study, to current students on the course and to staff teaching and administering the course.

Further detailed information on the individual modules within the course may be found in the relevant module descriptors and the Course Handbook provided to students on enrolment.

Please refer to the Course and Module Catalogue for further information on the course structure and modules.

Educational aims of the course

- To provide a framework allowing students to follow a flexible coherent programme for the study of the history of the Royal Navy and its relationship between British and other societies between circa 1500 and 1960
- To provide a framework within which students in relevant fields may acquire the research skills essential for the pursuit of their subject(s)
- To equip students with the necessary transferable skills for lifelong learning, employability and flexibility in the context of changing labour markets
- To provide students with the skills and knowledge required for further postgraduate study opportunities
- To provide an awareness of the need to conduct research ethically and safely and a framework within which to do so

Course Learning Outcomes and Learning, Teaching and Assessment Strategies

The Quality Assurance Agency for Higher Education \(QAA\) sets out a national framework of qualification levels, and the associated standards of achievement are found in their Framework for Higher Education Qualifications document.

The Course Learning Outcomes for this course are outlined in the tables below.

A. Knowledge and understanding of:

LO number	Learning outcome	Learning and Teaching methods	Assessment Methods
A1	The problems inherent in the historical record itself relating to the history of the Royal Navy and its relationship with British and other societies during the early modern and modern periods	DL online learning materials via the Virtual Learning Environment (VLE), supported synchronous online sessions and online group discussion boards in the first three core modules. In the research project and dissertation knowledge and understanding is developed through individual study supported by structured tutor guidance via email, Google Meet and, where possible,	Blog, document commentary, essays, report, research project, dissertation, and presentation
A2	The range of problems involved in the interpretation of complex, ambiguous, conflicting and often incomplete material in regard to the Royal Navy from the early modern to the modern period
A3	How people have existed, acted and thought in the always-different context of the past, reflecting on the continuity and changes in the relationship between the Royal Navy and society, from the early modern to the modern era
A4	The complexity and diversity of situations, events and mentalities in the past and, by extension, present
A5	The importance of asking relevant, cogent, and focused historical questions

Academic Regulations

The current University of Portsmouth Academic Regulations will apply to this course.

Support for Student Learning

The University of Portsmouth provides a comprehensive range of support services for students throughout their course, details of which are available at the MyPort student portal.

In addition to these University support services this course also provides assigned personal tutors from the very beginning of the course. In the first year these will be one of the MA Naval History teaching team or course leader. In the second year this will typically (although not necessarily) be the student's dissertation supervisor.

Evaluation and Enhancement of Standards and Quality in Learning and Teaching

The University of Portsmouth undertakes comprehensive monitoring, review and evaluation of courses within clearly assigned staff responsibilities. Student feedback is a key feature in these evaluations, as represented in our Policy for Listening to and Responding to the Student Voice where you can also find further information.

Reference Points

The course and outcomes have been developed taking account of:

Disclaimer

The University of Portsmouth has checked the information provided in this Course Specification and will endeavour to deliver this course in keeping with this Course Specification. However, changes to the course may sometimes be required arising from annual monitoring, student feedback, and the review and update of modules and courses.

Where this activity leads to significant changes to modules and courses there will be prior consultation with students and others, wherever possible, and the University of Portsmouth will take all reasonable steps to minimise disruption to students.

It is also possible that the University of Portsmouth may not be able to offer a module or course for reasons outside of its control, for example, due to the absence of a member of staff or low student registration numbers. Where this is the case, the University of Portsmouth will endeavour to inform applicants and students as soon as possible, and where appropriate, will facilitate the transfer of affected students to another suitable course.
