This course specification provides a summary of the main features of the course, identifies the aims and learning outcomes of the course, the teaching, learning and assessment methods used by teaching staff, and the reference points used to inform the curriculum.

This information is therefore useful to potential students to help them choose the right course of study, to current students on the course and to staff teaching and administering the course.

Further detailed information on the individual modules within the course may be found in the relevant module descriptors and the Course Handbook provided to students on enrolment.

Please refer to the Course and Module Catalogue for further information on the course structure and modules.

Educational aims of the course

- To prepare students for employment in the Television, media, communication and related industries and for postgraduate study
- To offer students an opportunity to explore career aspirations via the vocational study of professional practice.
- To provide a challenging, realistic, stimulating and self-rewarding study environment in areas such as client work, multi-skilling team work, computing (specifically graphic application, compositing and post-production editing and workflow) and technical aspects of core technologies pertinent to the video and TV industry.
- To provide the means for students to acquire practical industry skills in live and non-live television & video production, research, project management, via experiences such as working with real projects and real clients.
- To develop the necessary transferable skills required for continuing personal development and professional practice in different contexts.
- To develop relationships with audiences, clients, markets, users, consumers, employers and industries.
- To provide the opportunity for students to pursue work-related learning and/or a work placement.
- To provide the opportunity for students to study abroad and to inspire global engagement.
- To provide students with the skills and knowledge required to maximise career and postgraduate study opportunities.
- To equip graduates with the necessary transferable skills for lifelong learning and flexibility in the context of changing labour markets.

Changes to your course/modules

The University of Portsmouth has checked the information provided in this Course Specification and will endeavour to deliver this course in keeping with this Course Specification. However, changes to the course may sometimes be required arising from annual monitoring, student feedback, and the review and update of modules and courses.

Where this activity leads to significant changes to modules and courses there will be prior consultation with students and others, wherever possible, and the University of Portsmouth will take all reasonable steps to minimise disruption to students.

It is also possible that the University of Portsmouth may not be able to offer a module or course for reasons outside of its control, for example, due to the absence of a member of staff or low student registration numbers. Where this is the case, the University of Portsmouth will endeavour to inform applicants and students as soon as possible, and where appropriate, will facilitate the transfer of affected students to another suitable course.
